Priest seeks slander suit

- Reverend says he's subject of 'untrue' sex-related allegation
- Church officials refuse to reveal woman's name

JAMES TURNER
@METRONEWS.CA

A long-serving Winnipeg priest says an unfounded sex-related allegation made by a parishioner has cost him his good name and he's turning to the courts in hopes of clearing it.

Father John Melnyk is seeking to file a defamation lawsuit after officials in the Ukrainian Orthodox church claimed he was the subject of a sexual-misconduct complaint made by a female parishioner, according to court documents.

The church, however, is refusing to share the details of that complaint with him, including the name of the woman who complained.

The veteran clergyman, 83, is vehemently denying any wrongdoing and will ask a Court of Queen's Bench Justice to compel church officials to reveal the woman's name so his lawsuit can go ahead.

"Quite frankly, in my 36 years as a practising litigator it is difficult for me to conceive of a viler or a more insidious form of defamation."
GENE ZAZELENCHUK, LAWYER

"I wish to sue for defamation as that is the only way that I can clear my name," Melnyk states in a sworn affidavit. "I have never made inappropriate sexual advances to any member of my parish or, for that matter, to anyone at all."

At the time the complaint was revealed to him, Melnyk says he was seeking a new part-time job at a different church after nearly 30 years of service as an ordained priest.

The church denied his request because of the allegation, Melnyk states.

The church has rebuffed written requests made by Melnyk's lawyer to obtain the woman's name, the documents show. Melnyk's lawyer, Gene Zazelenchuk, wrote to the church and an official in July asking for their co-operation.

"I do not wish to demean your noble office ... however, my client has been seriously defamed," Zazelenchuk wrote.

Through his own lawyer the church official, Metropolitan Yurij (Kalistchuk), primate of the Orthodox Church of Canada, says that neither he nor the church are willing to reveal the woman's name.

A date to hear the priest's request has not been set and the church official has not yet responded to Melnyk's request for discovery.

Walk early, walk often, activists urge public

Slutwalk Winnipeg organizer Nila Cottrell said she isn't worried her protest walk will overlap with the one staged by Occupy Winnipeg.

"We actually attended their meeting Wednesday night and everyone was very supportive," she said.

She added that while both walks have different messages, participants are welcome to join in each other's peaceful protests.

Asked if a person could do both walks, she replied, "Definitely." METRO

Put your best foot forward this weekend

There could be two protest walks going on at once at the Legislative Building on Saturday: Slutwalk and Occupy Winnipeg Meanwhile, don't forget Zombie Walk, which is taking place on Friday night

ELISHA DACEY
@METRONEWS.CA

Feel like going for a walk? Despite the forecast, this might be a good weekend to do it.

Three major walks are happening Friday and Saturday in downtown Winnipeg, two of them serious, one a little less so.

First up is Winnipeg's Zombie Walk, expected to attract thousands of the "undead" on Friday night, each trying to out-ghoul the other as they roam the downtown streets looking for brains.

Saturday, however, will be given over to Occupy Winnipeg, a protest modelled on Occupy Wall Street in New York.

The Occupy movement has spread throughout the world and cities across Canada will be holding theirs on Saturday.

Organizers see the protest as a call to action and a way to spotlight corporate greed and Third World living conditions in northern communities.

The ultimate goal, they say, is to facilitate bridging the social and economic gaps in Canadian society.

The third protest walk is Slutwalk Winnipeg, which is also happening downtown on Saturday.

Organizer Nila Cottrell said people for the most part have been supportive of the walk.

"For every person we've had who has had a negative reaction, there have been 10 people to back us up," she said.

Cottrell said it's a misperception that participants all dress provocatively or that they all call themselves sluts.

"We're here to advocate on behalf of those who have been called sluts in the context of victim-blaming," she said, adding that participants — men and women both — are encouraged to dress however they like.

The forecast for this weekend is sunny with a high of 8 C on Friday and a high of 12 C on Saturday.

Walk this way

- Zombie Walk: Friday, 7 p.m. Starts at Stephen Juba Park, heads through the Forks and ends at the Leg.
- Occupy Winnipeg: Saturday, 10 a.m. Starts at the Leg, goes to the Exchange District and heads back to the Leg.
- Slutwalk: Saturday, 2 p.m. Starts at the Burton Cummings Theatre and ends ... at the Leg.

Shannon Buck has not seen her daughter, Lauren Chopek, since she left for school on the morning of Oct. 6.

When the 14-year-old didn't returned home by curfew that night, Buck called police. Three days later, Chopek was officially missing.

"I love her very, very much and I'm really worried about her," said Buck. "I just need her to come home, or at least call home and let me know where she is. We all really, really miss her and we need her to be home with us.

"She is very much at risk of being hurting herself or being hurt by someone else, or being exploited," added Buck. "Anything could happen to her out there."

Buck said, at this point, she believes her daughter is somewhere in Winnipeg's downtown area.

Chopek is described as aboriginal, five-foot-four and 115 pounds. She was last seen in the Fort Rouge area wearing white shorts, a long black sweater, black Nike high-top runners and large hoop earrings.

Buck said she's had a lot of help from the community, in particular from local resident Shelley Cook. Cook manages the Missing Manitoba Women Facebook page, where pictures of Chopek have been posted.

According to the Facebook page, Chopek's photo has been shared nearly 2,000 times all over the world.

Anyone with information regarding Chopek's whereabouts is asked to contact the Winnipeg Police Service at 986-6222, or the missing persons unit at 986-6250.

THE GREAT CANADIAN TALK SHOW PODCAST

The estranged wife of a slain former Manitoba pro wrestler, along with two others, will spend the next quarter-century behind bars for his planned and premeditated killing.

It took a Winnipeg jury just over a day of deliberations to find Melody Sanford, Donald Richard and Rita Cushnie guilty of first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder in connection to the September 2007 death of Ivan (John) Radocaj.

Only Cushnie showed any visible emotion as the verdict was read.

The 57-year-old visibly shook and jerked as she learned her fate.

Cushnie — Sanford's friend and Richard's mother — could be heard crying out as she was taken into custody after the decision.

Radocaj was fatally beaten with crowbars and pipes at his rural Manitoba home at Sanford's behest, falsely claiming that Radocaj had abused her daughter.

The Crown's key witness was a man initially charged in the killing who made a deal for immunity in exchange for testimony about the murder plot.

Tim Richard testified Sanford offered money and produced drawings of the layout of Radocaj's home.

Defence lawyers for Sanford and Donald Richard attacked Tim Richard's credibility and motivations for becoming a witness for the state to no avail. Cushnie's lawyers had asked for an outright acquittal on all charges.

In a long interview with RCMP following her early 2008 arrest, Sanford told police she wanted Radocaj to be "punished" for hurting her daughter.

Two other men are also facing charges in the case and are being prosecuted separately.

FPS games dumb the brain: Study

Shooter images change our view of violence: Experts

KARIN WASTESON
OTTAWA@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS

Your mother warned you: Rough-and-tough video games may make you laugh off violence in real life.

Now new scientific research into first-person shooter games confirms that they do change how we regard gruesome acts of violence.

Psychologists and neurologists in a University of Bonn study discovered that brain-activity patterns in heavy gamers radically differ from those of non-gamers.

The German researchers analyzed the effect on the brain of images from first-person shooter games — in which the player experiences the action through the eyes of the shooter.

Those gamers chosen for the study played first-person shooter games for 15 hours a week on average, while the control group had no experience of violent video games.

The experts scanned the brain activity of gamers and non-gamers while showing harrowing and gruesome shots of accident and disaster victims.

Both groups responded with similarly strong emotions, but the frontal lobes that control fear or aggression were less activated in gamers.

"Both groups reacted strongly to the photos," says Dr Christian Montag, lead author of the study.

"But while the control group down-regulates their feelings, the gamers do not need to down-regulate because their initial response was not as high.

Montag added: "(First-person-shooter players) do not respond as strongly to the real, negative-image material because they are used to it from their daily computer activities."

Fat Britain must trim 5 billion calories

British health officials say the country's obesity epidemic has an easy fix: people should just eat less.

The department of health said Thursday most adults in the nation of 60 million people are eating about 10 per cent more calories than necessary.

To stop the bulging waistlines, officials said, the country needs to collectively trim five billion calories from its daily diet.

But in a slightly confusing twist, the government also issued new calorie recommendations that are about 100 calories higher than the last figures in 1991.

Men are now allowed to eat about 2,605 calories of food every day while for women, it's 2,079.

Olivia Chow spoke of Jack Layton's inspiring "hope" and "courage" at a prostate cancer luncheon in Halifax yesterday.

More than 200 people sporting Prostate Cancer Canada's signature blue striped ties, hats and handkerchiefs packed the room at Halifax Marriott Harbourfront Hotel for an the annual Leaders' Conference.

"He felt very blessed to have the opportunity to speak out about prostate cancer, and to do so with a national stage — something he knew would help other men," Chow told delegates of her late husband and former federal NDP leader, who passed away in late August.

Chow, the MP for Trinity-Spadina, applauded Nova Scotia's free prostate specific antigen (PSA) blood testing program, the test that detects the cancer, and spoke of the need for the same system country-wide.

Chow garnered multiple standing ovations from the attentive crowd, and sparked more than a few eruptions of laughter.

"We have a team of New Democratics determined to grow the best mustaches in town, and we call them our 'New Dem-MO-cratics,'" she said, referring to next month's Movember fundraiser that raises money for men's health.

All jokes aside, Chow said she hopes to help make this the best Movember in Canada's history, and believes the legacy of her husband's prominent and recognizable mustache will encourage that.

When asked by an audience member the reasoning for concealing the illness that took Layton's life, Chow said, "he didn't want people to lose hope if they had that kind of cancer."

PM supports updating royal succession

A spokesman for the prime minister says Stephen Harper is in favour of modernizing the 300-year-old rules of succession for the Royal family.

British Prime Minister David Cameron is seeking the consent of all 15 Commonwealth countries to change the rules for replacing the monarch.

Currently, the eldest son is heir to the throne, bypassing older sisters in the line of succession.

Cameron wants to make the eldest child, boy or girl, the heir — full stop.

Harper had previously expressed reservations about changing the rules of succession as recently as April, when he said reopening the succession debate was not a priority of Canadians. THE CANADIAN PRESS

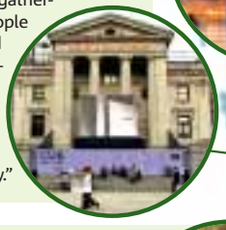
United in protest

- On Saturday, cities around the world will join the Occupy Wall Street movement
- Here's a snapshot of what's happening in Metro cities across Canada

Occupy Vancouver
at Vancouver Art Gallery

"The movement in its core is peaceful," said organizer Min Reyes. "It's not a protest; it's more of a gathering for people to talk and try and figure out how we can change our society."



Occupy Edmonton
at Churchill Square

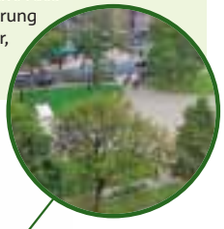
In a statement, organizers say they are concerned about corporate interests' effect on political institutions and public policy, along with putting profits above the well-being of communities.

Occupy Winnipeg
at Manitoba legislature building

Organizers say the seven-hour walk through the city's banking district is a call to action against corporate greed, corporate control and Third World living conditions in northern communities.

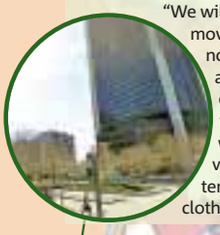
Occupy Halifax
at Grande Parade Square

Members will be taking their message beyond the designated area outside city hall to Halifax's Nocturne festival, set for the same night, said Dylan Sagar, an administrator of Occupy Halifax's Facebook page. Since the group sprung up at the beginning of October, its Facebook page has attracted more than 2,300 likes.



Occupy Montreal
at Square Victoria

"We will not be moved. We will not leave. We are the 99 per cent," reads the group's website. It advises bringing tents and warm clothes.



Occupy Calgary
at Bankers Hall

Organizers have set up a "safe camp" on St. Patrick's Island, which, as of mid-week, had 50 residents and was continuing to grow. Police plan to bring in more officers if necessary, expressing concern anarchists could infiltrate the rally.

Occupy Toronto
at Financial District

Organizers have been haunted by last year's crackdown on G20 protests. In a petition to Toronto Chief Bill Blair, signatories called on police to respect the rights of demonstrators. "The goal is public safety and facilitation of peaceful protest," responded police spokesman Mark Pugash.

Occupy Ottawa
at Confederation Park

"We're hoping that there will be between 500 to 1,000 out and we can actually engage them in the demand-making process. It is very difficult to align everybody's (points of view)," said Kevin Donaghy, one of the lead organizers, who said he himself will be advocating for greater protection of First Nations lands

Forget Twitter. The best way to organize a protest in 826 cities around the world is good, old-fashioned word of mouth.

Facebook and Twitter appear to be outlets for anti-establishment ranting rather than almighty mass-mobilizing tools. In fact, despite the movement's rallying cry that claims "We are the 99 per cent," figures on social-media networks reveal a bleaker reality.

According to Twitter trends aggregators twopular.com and TwitterCounter.com, #event15october and #globalchange don't feature in the Top 60 global trends of the week.

Meanwhile, the official Facebook page for 15october reveals that there are more people who didn't click on the "attendance" button (338,000) than the would-be demonstrators (some 50,000).

▶ A protester rests at a makeshift tent camp in Rome Thursday, in preparation for Saturday's demonstration against the Italian government's austerity package.

The reason for the lack of social-media activity is clear, said social-media analyst Andrew Girdwood.

"For these kinds of protests like the Occupy Wall Street movement, there's one co-ordination that needs to be done, but it is ultimately up to people to tell their friends to go," he said.

In fact, according to Girdwood, "people living in areas of the world with advanced traditional media coverage will just need to switch on the television to check if something is happening nearby, and eventually head to the demonstration."

The global hot spots today are those countries, such as Italy and Spain, hard hit by the financial crisis and subsequent European Union debt woes.

Protesters wary of park cleanup

New York protesters expressed fears Thursday that a scheduled cleanup of the private park where they've been camped out near Wall Street is merely a ploy to unravel the demonstration.

City officials have informed protesters that they will need to leave Zuccotti Park on Friday so that it can be cleaned, but that they'll be allowed to return afterward.

As a steady drizzle fell Thursday over the park, owned by Brookfield Properties, confusion was high over when the protesters will be ordered out — and where they'll go during the evacuation.

"The cleanup is a pretext to remove us from the camp. And we can return only if we abide by the rules of Brookfield Properties," said Justin Wedes, 25, a public high school science teacher from Brooklyn.

Brookfield did not respond to requests for comment Thursday, but two uniformed police officers at the park confirmed that they escorted representatives of the company as the notices were passed out to demonstrators.

The notice lists regulations including a prohibition of tents, tarps and sleeping bags on the ground, no lying on benches, and no storage of personal property on the ground. Those rules could end protesters' ability to continue living, sleeping and preparing food in the park.

Unidentified man stops by Air Canada executive's home with what appeared to be a hand gun Labour Minister Lisa Raitt closes office after receiving threats

The labour dispute between Air Canada and its flight attendants has taken a menacing turn after a suspected gunman made a late-night appearance near an airline executive's home and the federal labour minister closed her office after receiving threats.

Police are investigating after a man showed up near Air Canada executive Duncan Dee's Ottawa home Wednesday evening with what appeared to be a handgun.

A police spokesman says the man drove up to a private security guard outside Dee's house and showed him what looked like a gun before driving away.

"We responded to a call in that area at around 11:20 last night when a private security guard saw a suspicious male in the area," Const. Marc Soucy told The Canadian Press.

Soucy added that "Nothing was ever said that he was going to kill anybody or do harm to anyone."

Dee is the airline's executive vice president and chief operating officer.

He has been Air Canada's main spokesman during the airline's contract dispute with the union representing its 6,800 flight attendants.

Air Canada was not immediately available for comment.

FOOTLOOSE! KICK OFF THE SUNDAY SHOES!

THE METRO LIST

NEIL MORTON
METRO

1 Footloose remake: Starting Friday, you gotta cut loose, footloose, kick off the Sunday shoes, because the remake of 1984's music drama Footloose is out. It's about a big-city kid who moves to a small town where rock music and dancing have been banned. So ... please, Louise, pull me off of my knees! Jack, get Mack, come on before we crack! Lose your blues, everybody cut footloose!

2 Save a high school: PCVS, a historic downtown high school in Peterborough, Ont., founded in 1827 that counts Lester B. Pearson, Sean Cullen, Serena Ryder and Jim Balsillie as alumni, is fighting through public protests, petitions and YouTube videos to keep its school alive after the local school board recommended that it close. Shutting down an inner-city arts school with culture and heritage will have a significant impact on the economy and fabric of a downtown in a small city. Forget Footloose, this is real-life drama.

3 Winnipeg Jets: Yes, the Jets are flying again after a 15-year hiatus, with a star-studded home opener against Montreal Sunday night that included our PM, George Stroumboulopoulos, and Jim Cuddy and Chantal Kreviazuk singing the national anthem. The Jets might have lost the game, but they won the nation over and their home crowd of 15,000, which gave them a thunderous ovation at game's end. Welcome back.

4 Ping pong hip: SPiN Toronto, a new 12,000-square-foot basement ping-pong bar in downtown T.O., had its grand opening this week. It's trying to mimic the success of one of the same name (which it's part of) in Manhattan, part owned by Susan Sarandon. SPiN is a place to drink, play ping-pong and socialize. Just watch: The next big fad will be pool tables in every basement in the world. Next to a beer fridge.

5 Ron MacLean's Cornered: The hockey broadcaster icon's new memoir, Cornered, went on sale this week, and offers inside accounts from his early days as a part-time radio announcer and weather forecaster in Red Deer, Alta., to his time hosting Hockey Night in Canada. Sounds promising, but they should have just called it Coach's Corner and let Don Cherry write the prologue and epilogue.

6 Rosie's new crush: Rose O'Donnell is back — four years after leaving The View and a decade since ending her successful daytime talk show — with The Rosie Show, which debuted this week on the Oprah Winfrey Network. Thankfully, it appears she's not resuscitating her infatuation with Tom Cruise. That's so '90s. Apparently her new boy crush is Russell Brand. That's more 2011.

7 Lee Harvey Oswald's lover: Judyth Vary Baker is making a rare public appearance next week in Toronto to mark what would be Oswald's 72nd birthday. Baker, author of Me & Lee: How I Came to Know, Love and Lose Lee Harvey Oswald, has been trying to clear Oswald's name. Her take: Lee was an undercover agent who had penetrated a ring determined to murder president Kennedy and was actually trying to prevent it but instead got framed. So, JFK conspiracy buffs, there you go.

Worth Mentioning

She's a 40-year-old mother of eight, with a ninth child due soon. The family homestead in a Burundi village is too small to provide enough food, and three of the children have quit school for lack of money.

"I regret to have made all those children," says Godelive Ndageramiwe.

At Ahmed Kasadha's prosperous farm in eastern Uganda, it's a different story.

"My father had 25 children — I have only 14 so far, and expect to produce more in the future," says Kasadha, who has two wives. He considers a large family a sign of success.

By the time Ndageramiwe's ninth child arrives, and any further members of the Kasadha clan, the world's population will have passed a momentous milestone. As of Oct. 31, according to the UN Population Fund, there will be seven billion people on Earth.

Experts say most of Africa — and other high-growth developing nations such as Afghanistan and Pakistan — will be hard-pressed to furnish enough food, water and jobs for their people.

Seattle superhero appears in court

A self-proclaimed superhero wore a charcoal-coloured mask Thursday as he entered a Seattle courtroom where prosecutors said they hadn't yet decided whether to file charges against him.

Phoenix Jones, whose real name is Benjamin John Francis Fodor, was arrested early Sunday after police say he pepper-sprayed four people who had left a nightclub. Fodor said he was trying to break up a fight when he was attacked. The club-goers insisted to police they hadn't been fighting.

During the hearing, a court officer asked Jones to remove his mask and he complied. He also wore a superhero uniform under a button-down shirt.

"I decided to make a difference and stop crime in my neighbourhood," Fodor said.

Union actions unfair: Air Canada

Labour unions accuse Harper government of 'trampling' workers' rights

Air Canada demanded compensation Thursday from the union representing its 6,800 flight attendants, accusing it of bargaining in bad faith.

The airline, which did not specify how much it was seeking, said the Canadian Union of Public Employees did not do enough to encourage the ratification of two tentative deals that were negotiated but later rejected.

In the unfair labour practice complaint to the Canada Industrial Relations Board, Air Canada accused the union of increasing its demands during its latest round of bargaining and misrepresenting what its members would accept.

"CUPE made these representations to Air Canada without having conducted any formal surveys of its membership," the airline said.

Jeff Taylor, president of the Air Canada component at CUPE, said he believed the deal reached with the airline, under the threat of back-to-work legislation, was the best one possible.

"We had a great deal, but under the circumstances we were bargaining under, with the legislation hanging over our heads, realistically here we are," Taylor said. "My members clearly said it still wasn't enough and they have the right to do that and I respect them for that." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ongoing dispute

- The union cancelled the strike Wednesday after dispute was referred to the CIRB, effectively quashing the job action.
- More than 100 flight attendants continued to protest at Montreal's airport Thursday.
- Workers are angry about the airline's plans for a discount carrier that would require lower wages for new hires and the company's position on pensions and other work issues.

Buffett to show taxes?

Warren Buffett is bringing his fight to raise taxes on the super-wealthy to Congress' deficit-reduction supercommittee.

In an exchange of letters between the billionaire investor and a Republican congressman that Buffett sent the committee this week, Buffett is offering to release his federal tax returns — with a condition.

"If you could get other ultra-rich Americans to publish their returns along with mine, that would be very useful to the tax dialogue and intelligent reform," Buffett wrote.

The letters were among several sent in recent days to the special bipartisan panel created this summer to find ways to reduce the mushrooming national debt by at least $1.2 trillion over the coming decade.

The same law that produced the supercommittee gave Congress' regular committees until Friday to submit suggestions for erasing red ink. Some have indicated that rather than offering dramatic new ideas for savings, many lawmakers are championing longtime favourite proposals and urging the panel to avoid cutting certain programs. Google gliding by recession

Worries over another global recession haven't shaken Google. The online search and advertising leader's third-quarter earnings, released Thursday, are the latest reminder of how it has used its position as the Internet's dominant gateway to build a business that endures economic turbulence. Investors showed approval as Google's stock price surged six per cent. The stock climbed $33.37 to $592.36 in extended trading. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RIM backs its delay

BlackBerry services returned to normal Thursday after four days of global outages, but the maker of the smartphone faces a new set of challenges as it tries to clean up a public-relations headache.

Research In Motion's two co-CEOs — Mike Lazaridis and Jim Balsillie — emerged from more than three days of silence to answer questions and apologize again about the biggest outage in the Canadian company's history.

RIM offered only a few updates while a growing number of BlackBerry users turned to their Facebook and Twitter accounts to express their frustrations.

The company has about 70 million BlackBerry subscribers worldwide, and while the technical glitches did not affect everyone, discontent spread fast.

RIM has now stepped into territory, commonly known as crisis management. Balsillie defended RIM's decision to wait until the problems were nearly fixed before coming out publicly in a bigger way. He said they will now address BlackBerry users.

That attitude may have worked in the past, but with the rise of social media, the urgency of major companies to address customers' concerns has reached a new level, say some observers. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harry's legacy: Potter studio near London to open to public

Synopsis

- Ren (Kenny Wormald) is a big city kid forced by circumstance to move to the small town of Bomont, Ga., where dancing is outlawed. Ren, a former gymnast and dancing fool, challenges the law, butts heads with the local preacher (Dennis Quaid) and falls in love with the minister's daughter Ariel (Julianne Hough). Will the town lift the ban? Will the love birds ever get to break dance in public?

Country-fried fun

Footloose redux grittier than expected, with stars Kenny Wormald and Julianne Hough shining on the dance floor But in the end, it's still full of cheese

Richard: Mark, Footloose is grittier than you would imagine a movie starring Ryan Seacrest's girlfriend to be. The slickness normally associated with contemporary teen fare is mostly missing here, replaced with the steamy Southern feel that permeates director Craig Brewer's other films. You won't hear a line like, "You're sexier than socks on a rooster," in any of the Twilight movies.

Mark: Yes, Richard, the best thing about the movie is its authentic country-fried details. It doesn't condescend to its blue collar characters and that's to its credit. I thought the original was dated way back in the '80s. Now, in an Internet world, the town that banned dancing would have been ridiculed all over America and the American Civil Liberties Union would have filed suit immediately. And why did the town ban teen dancing when the real problem was teen drinking?

RC: Because then the movie would have to have been called Intervention, and that's a whole different story! Rebooting a well-loved classic is a tricky business. There are slight changes, Ren is now from Boston instead of Chicago, the tractor game of chicken from the original is now a bus race and the dancing has been updated but the upbeat rebellious core (and most of the songs) of the '84 movie is intact.

MB: Speaking of dancing, I wish there had been more of it. The first dance scene in the parking lot had nice energy, Kenny Wormald's solo when he dances off his anger in the warehouse was riveting, but then it takes a long time to get to the big finale, which I thought was a dud. The movie should have gone craaaaaaazzzzzy at that point, but everyone, including the choreographer, was on their best behaviour. And what did you think of the acting?

RC: I thought Wormald and Hough shone the brightest when they are in motion on the dance floor — which isn't often enough — but Miles Teller as Willard (played by Chris Penn in the original), Ren's dance-challenged best friend steals the show on and off the dance floor.

MB: You could not be more right. Teller has the looks and presence of a young John Cusack. And only Dennis Quaid could take the thankless preacher role and imbue it with a sense of humanity. But in the end, it's still a cheesy flick, even if this remake takes it from mild to medium cheddar.

The Thing
Genre: Horror
Director: Matthijs van Heijningen Jr.
Stars: Mary Elizabeth Winstead, Joel Edgerton

Classic sci-fi thriller The Thing gets its first makeover in nearly 30 years in this updated prequel about a replicating alien killing off stranded scientists in remote Antarctica. While the film delivers serviceable respect to John Carpenter's 1982 version with exemplary use of scenery, effects and a strong lead in Mary Elizabeth Winstead (Final Destination 3), the outcome is predictable and the plot somewhat transparent. STEVE GOW

The Big Year
Genre: Comedy
Director: David Frankel
Stars: Jack Black, Steve Martin, Owen Wilson

Take ambition, intrigue, passion, backstabbing, dastardly deeds and greed on a massive scale, add laughs, set it in the world of competitive bird watching and you have The Big Year. Audience faves Black, Martin and Wilson embark on the yearlong competition to score the most species sightings, in a strangely fascinating, insightful and funny road trip and gets added credit for having the guts regarding the whole bird watching thing. Frankel brings Marley-and-Me heart and The-Devil-Wears-Prada sass to this unexpected gem, based on Mark Obmascik's book.

The Three Musketeers return but this time in 3D ‘The movie doesn’t take itself seriously,’ says co-star Orlando Bloom That explains the giant airship

ANTHONY JOHNSTON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

“All for one, and one for all!” — that ageless motto, evoking 17th century swashbuckling Frenchmen, sounds its familiar jingle yet again with the release of a new The Three Musketeers.

This time, however, we get “action fresh and modern for the younger audience”, according to director and co-producer Paul W.S. Anderson, the man behind the Resident Evil saga.

“I felt that every generation ought to get its own version of The Three Musketeers — one that reflects of that particular decade,” he says of the 1844 classic by Alexandre Dumas.

So in essence: a new cast, some peppy dialogue and novel visual effects — all in trending 3D.

Anderson’s “stellar ensemble cast” has some degree of critical acclaim: Logan Lerman, who leads as D’Artagnan, is coming-of-age in Hollywood, having appeared in Percy Jackson; the world-weary Musketeers are played by Matthew Macfadyen (Pride & Prejudice), Ray Stevenson (TV’s Rome) and Luke Evans (the upcoming Immortals); and Anderson’s wife and cult favourite Milla Jovovich is triple-agent Milady de Winter.

Among the bad guys, Oscar-winner Christoph Waltz (Inglourious Basterds) plays the conniving Richelieu, and onetime A-lister Orlando Bloom appears as the dastardly Duke of Buckingham.

D’Artagnan and his buddy Musketeers must protect the King of France from those two maniacs.

“The movie doesn’t take itself seriously,” Bloom confesses. “This is a pop culture, tongue-in-cheek, irreverent, fun, ‘go buy a big bag of popcorn and take a trip’ version of the movie. It’s not a historically accurate retelling of The Three Musketeers that the novelist wrote.”

Bloom’s devious Duke, with his hyperreal pompadour coif and garish frill-necked outfits, seems an epitome of the movie’s self-caricature.

Even the Musketeers prefer to guzzle booze than spruce themselves up for action.

“I don’t know why we didn’t get the theme music from [the ’80s cartoon] Dogtanian and the Three Muskehounds — instead we got [British pop stars] Take That,” Macfadyen jokes. “What’s more, I had a pang of jealousy for Orlando’s costumes.”

“All for one, and one for all — it does exactly what it says on the tin,” says Bloom, adding: “and it’s in 3D, and it has a gigantic airship.”

Young heartthrob

On The Three Musketeers set, everyday was a bad hair day for Logan Lerman.

- “I was very conscious of those extensions,” says the 19-year-old from Beverly Hills about the tousled emo-meets-This is Spinal Tap mullet he wore.
- “They were like little beads, melted on to five strands of hair one at a time. Honestly it felt like a beanie that you couldn’t take off,” says Lerman.

Kutcher expecting to see divorce papers

Demi Moore consulting with attorneys after cheating rumours surface

Ashton Kutcher is reportedly "expecting" Demi Moore to file for divorce after Sara Leal went public with details of her night with the Two and a Half Men star, according to Radar Online.

"Ashton is absolutely gutted. Ashton had confessed his sexual relationship with Sara to Demi after it happened," a source says.

"She's currently consulting with divorce attorneys. Ashton doesn't want her to file for divorce, and is hoping they can work it out. However, Ashton expects that Demi will likely file. Ashton was hoping that Sara wouldn't give any interviews about their sexual encounter, but now she's spilling all the seedy details and it doesn't help matters at all."

Reynolds stirs up the Gossip with a new Girl

TESTING THE WATERS. Blake Lively and Ryan Reynolds are reportedly "trying out" dating now that both are single, according to Us Weekly.

Lively had previously travelled to Boston, where Reynolds is filming, and now Reynolds has returned the favour, visiting the Gossip Girl set in New York.

"They hugged and then got in a car together," a source says of the visit. "They became good friends on the set (of Green Lantern). Now they're both single and trying it out. They're seeing each other casually." METRO

Swank claims ignorance

WE BELIEVE HER Hilary Swank is very, very sorry about attending a birthday party for Chechen president and accused human rights violator Ramzan Kadyrov earlier this month, according to the Associated Press.

"I deeply regret attending this event. If I had a full understanding of what this event was apparently intended to be, I would never have gone," Swank says in a statement.

The Oscar-winning actress claims the invitation was for a concert and made no reference to Kadyrov's birthday. Jean Claude Van Damme also attended the event. METRO

Complement Chinese food

PETER ROCKWELL
LIQUIDASSETS@EASTLINK.CA
TWITTER: @THEREALWINEGUY

Even though it's been making wine since around 5,000 B.C., as a culture China's always been about the food, so its population never embraced the art of combing liquids and solids with the enthusiasm of their counterparts elsewhere.

Since Chinese food is a combo of sweet, sour and spicy, finding wines to work with everything on your plate is about as easy as keeping a straight face when someone tells you he or she likes the Charlie Sheen-less Three And A Half Men.

My pick is something soft with a touch of residual sweetness like a German riesling. Off-dry sparkling and rosé wines work, too.

If you want the hottest Asian food marriage, fill your glass with Moscato. Originally Italian, American upstarts like the non-vintage Barefoot Moscato ($7.99 - $11.99) take all the round, lightly-sweet fruit of the muscat grape and massage it into a perfectly plush, tropically-influenced (and not too boozy) companion for any Chinese menu.

Cook like the Quons

The family behind The Lingnan restaurant, and stars of the The Quon Dynasty, share their Black Bean Chicken recipe It's a fave at the eatery

Loved by its customers, the Lingnan restaurant in Edmonton is cosy and elegant but quaintly out of date. The Quon Dynasty follows the family's adventures through a realm power struggles, sibling rivalry and egg rolls.

Black Bean Chicken

This recipe has been popular at the Lingnan since the 1970s. The family makes its own black bean garlic sauce, but you can find it at any good Chinese grocery, and even at some regular supermarkets.

Black bean sauce is popular in Cantonese cooking. Try adding a teaspoon or two to your own stir-fries. And, if you enjoy this recipe, try substituting beef or shrimp for the chicken, or try different vegetable combos. Chinese cooking should be fun!

Preparation:

1. Blend together seasonings, except the 1 tbsp oil. Coat chicken with the seasonings; then, stir in the oil. Marinate at least 15 minutes.
2. Heat 3 tbsp oil in pan. Fry chicken until cooked. Strain and set aside.
3. Heat 2 tbsp oil. Add black bean sauce and onion. Stir-fry until it smells good (about 2 minutes). Add peppers, celery and carrots, and stir-fry until onions are soft. Add chicken and cooking wine. Mix well. Add in 1 tsp. sugar, ½ tbsp oyster sauce, white pepper and sesame oil. Pour in chicken stock. When sauce boils, thicken with cornstarch mixture. (1 tsp cornstarch and 1 tbsp water).

Crosby takes 'big step' toward return

Penguins superstar cleared for full-contact, but in no rush to return to game action

Sidney Crosby is one final step away from returning to the NHL.

The Pittsburgh Penguins captain shed the white no-contact helmet he has worn for nearly a month and was a full participant in a morning skate Thursday after being cleared to absorb hits in practice for the first time since sustaining a concussion in January.

Crosby still must show he can handle contact with no concussion-related problems before he can play in games but, after being symptom free for weeks, he admittedly is "excited" to be closer to returning.

"It's a good step in the right direction," said Crosby, sweat still pouring off his face following the half-hour practice. "It's a big step ... we'll see how things go."

The Nova Scotia native didn't throw any checks or accept any as the Penguins mostly skated and went through shooting drills in advance of Thursday's game against the Washington Capitals. Still, Crosby said he won't be reluctant to instigate contact when he does practise.

GENE J. PUSKAR/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Crosby

Penguins coach Dan Bylsma said there is no firm timetable for Crosby's return to games. Neither Bylsma nor Crosby dropped any hints whether it might be mere days or a few weeks.

"But I don't think it's hard to be patient at this point," said the 24-year-old Crosby. "I'm getting closer and I want to make sure I respond well in the next however long it is."

Crosby must show he can handle any and all contact without a recurrence of any of his previously suffered symptoms, such as headaches, dizziness, an inability to concentrate, sensitivity to loud noises or bright lights.

Practice shortage

Sidney Crosby can now take part in every phase of practice, but the Penguins aren't practising much.

- They're beginning the season by playing six games in 10 days and eight in 13 days.
- Coach Dan Bylsma might have to create some contact-heavy drills especially for Crosby, who said no drill can replicate what occurs in a game.

Garret's patience paying off

Injuries thrust former cast-off into Bombers starting role ‘I've always had to prove myself,' says tailback

NATHAN DENETTE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Hamilton Tiger-Cats defenders give chase to Blue Bombers running back Chris Garrett, left, in Hamilton last week.

BOMBERS ESKIMOS

▶ Time: Saturday, 6 p.m.
TV: TSN

Chris Garrett knows what it's like to wait his turn.

Whether it was on the football field or in the classroom, the Winnipeg Blue Bombers new starting running back has learned patience and discipline.

It paid off last month when Garrett got the chance to replace Fred Reid and backup Carl Volny after the pair suffered season-ending knee injuries in a Sept. 24 loss to Toronto.

In his first game, the five-foot-eight, 185-pound native of Utica, N.Y., carried 11 times for 76 yards, including a 32-yard touchdown run in a loss to Montreal.

He boosted his output last week, chalking up the team's first 100-yard rushing game of the season with 131 yards on 18 carries in a win over Hamilton that clinched a playoff spot for the Bombers (9-5) for the first time since 2008.

"Every level I've ever played at, I've always had to prove myself ..." Garrett said after the Bombers practised Thursday.

"The road that I've taken to get where I'm at is very unfortunate, for Carl and Fred to go down, but I have my goals and I stick to them. And it seems like every road I've went down I've always stuck it out and at the back end of it I've always got the chance and I've made the most of it."

The Ohio University tailback signed with Winnipeg as a free agent in September 2010, mainly as a kick returner. He was Ohio's all-time leader in kick return average (26.7 yards) and kick return yards (2,063).

"He's a hard worker. He's in here every day early and stays late learning the offence and reading the opposing team."
BOMBERS RIGHT GUARD STEVE MORLEY ON CHRIS GARRETT

He dressed for five games and rushed 19 times for 113 yards and took seven kickoffs back for 139 yards.

He attended Bombers training camp this year, but was cut after the team went with returner Perry Floyd. When Floyd was released in August, Garrett was re-signed.

Bombers head coach Paul LaPolice said Garrett has done a pretty good job in two games.

"I would say he is very patient," LaPolice said. "He waits to see (where the holes open).

Garrett credits his patience and determination to the year he spent at Fork Union Military Academy, a Virginia boarding school he attended to get his test scores up so he could go to college.

"It showed me a different life — how to act in certain situations, just be disciplined in the classroom, in life and even on the field," Garrett said.

Garrett's mother, Alfreda Brown, and grandmother, Josephine Jackson, drove to Hamilton from New York to see him play in a pro game for the first time last week.

The only child gave the game ball to his teary-eyed mom.

"It was a very good experience for both of them to see me still playing and to be living my dream," said Garrett, 24, adding his dad plans to attend a game later this season. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Linking passing record to NFL an insult to Calvillo

CFL EXTRA POINTS

DAN TOTH
WINNIPEG@METRONEWS.CA

Anthony Calvillo's CFL record for all-time passing yards stands on its own merit, without being tagged the "pro football" record too.

The CFL made quite a fuss when the Montreal Alouettes QB surpassed Damon Allen to become the league's new king of the passing game, then the league went out of its way to pile Calvillo's numbers on top of NFL passing records to emphasize the point. It's unnecessary and is an insult to players on both sides of the border.

With a 50-yard pass to Jamel Richardson, Calvillo eclipsed Allen's 72,381 career passing yards, opening the floodgates of accolades from the likes of former NFL stars Dan Marino and Brett Favre. What does it matter? Calvillo's numbers are worthy of praise without the recognition from the NFL and comparing the numbers from different leagues is unwarranted.

"I never looked at the numbers the NFL guys accomplished because I thought in the CFL, we have our own league with our own records," Calvillo said. "But that was special to me."

Special maybe, but not necessary.

Riders limp into the sunset: Has a CFL team ever fallen as fast and as far as the 2011 Saskatchewan Roughriders? Almost guaranteed to miss the playoffs, the Riders appeared in three of the last four Grey Cup games and were picked in this column to finish first in the West. Yet the Riders' offence under QBs Darian Durant and Ryan Dinwiddie is so inept, longstanding records for futility are starting to fall.

The Riders haven't scored an offensive touchdown in more than three games — 14 quarters, in fact, the longest Saskatchewan scoring drought since 1979 when the team won just two games.

Their nine points scored in the last three games is the worst string of futility in Riders history.
